Wrestling Bear to Meet All Comers at Alaa Park During Carnival Week

Eddie Fernandez, crack baseball player, legislator and moving-picture impresario, has added a new attraction to the list he purveys for public entertainment. He has secured "John Brown," credited with being the world's greatest wrestling bear. John Brown arrived on the Wilhelmina, and after his ocean voyage is ready to tackle anything in the way of wrestling. Manager Fernandez announces that the athletic bruin will meet all comers at Alaa Park during Carnival week. A recent photograph shows John Brown grappling with an athlete and ready to put him on his back. This feature promises to be one of the Carnival week attractions.

ADMISSION TO MOANA HOTEL PIER TOMORROW BY TICKET ONLY

During the water carnival tomorrow afternoon the pier at the Moana Hotel will be used as judges' stand. Upon advice of those in charge of the Carnival, the management has decided to close the pier to the public and to issue a limited number of tickets of admission. This is principally done, as a precaution against accident, and police officers have been applied for to assist in enforcing these regulations.—Adv.

KRISTOFFY TO GIVE CONCERT NEXT TUESDAY

Johanna Kristoffy, the soprano who was unanimously acclaimed the premier artist of the now defunct De Folco Grand Opera Company, will give a farewell concert in Honolulu next Tuesday evening at Odd Fellows' hall.

Kristoffy's farewell will begin immediately after the lantern parade, which is to be the Carnival feature Tuesday night. The singer leaves Honolulu the next day, Wednesday, in the Wilhelmina.

As yet the program has not been arranged, but it will include songs and arias in English, German and Italian.

and taken to Swinemuende, has been released.

WALLINGFORD IS GIVING CHAPLIN RACE FOR FIRST

Two first-class comedy pictures and two high-grade vaudeville acts are the features of the national theater's new program which begins this evening.

Of the pictures, the real drawing card will be the great Charlie Chaplin. He cavorts tonight in a comic affair entitled "Caught in a Cabaret," and those who have seen this latest production declare it one of his best and funniest efforts.

With patrons of the National, J. Rufus Wallingford and Blackie Daw are running Chaplin a close second for popularity. These laughable, quick-witted rogues are seen in Honolulu on the screen of this theater only. Readers of Cosmopolitan magazine have become familiar with these stories and now are becoming regular attendants at the National when one of the filmed versions is shown. The new one is the fifth of the series.

Billy Kinkaid, sensational and funny Scotch juggler, will stage a number of new stunts beginning tonight, as also will Manuel de Fra, the equilibrist, whose thrilling "high in the air" work holds the audience spellbound.

NANCE O'NEIL PLAYS PART IN TOLSTOI FILM

The most agreeable surprise thus far sprung on the patrons of the Hawaii theater occurred last night when "Kreutzer Sonata" was run as an added attraction. This is probably the most daring story ever essayed on the film, and features Nance O'Neil, one of the leading stars on any stage today; Theda Bara, who will be remembered for her work in "A Fool There Was"; William Shay, a strong actor entrusted with a difficult role, and little Mimi Yvonne, who appeared recently with Theda Bara.

Theda Bara established a reputation for the handling of "vampire" parts in "A Fool There Was," and he upholds this reputation in the present offering, being cast in a very similar role. Nance O'Neil in the part of the injured wife demonstrates the wonderful ability that has placed her well in the forefront of the world's actresses. William Shay appears as the husband and Mimi Yvonne as their child.

"Kreutzer Sonata" is a novel by the late Count Leo Tolstoi and so far removed was it from the American standard of "permissible" literature that the first translations into English ever imported into this country were confiscated by the then postmaster-general and destroyed.

Provided it is possible to make arrangements, through the use of the cable, with the San Francisco distributors this film will be continued at the Hawaii all next week. The management is not assured that it will be able to retain this masterpiece more than a few days. This offering will be the feature for today and tomorrow evening.

OLD METHODS IN USE IN FLORIDA PINE CANNERIES

Charlotte Walker has again scored a success in Honolulu by her presentation of the leading character in "Out of Darkness," the feature, offering which closes at the Liberty theater tonight. The part is a strong one and the star proves a versatile artist.

The viewpoint of the owner of a large cannery, with an income that is fabulous, is strongly contrasted to that of the worker in that same cannery on wages of 30 cents a day—when the owner becomes the worker. True, the latter position is filled but a short time following a loss of memory, but the time is sufficiently long to prove to the haughty and selfish Helen Scott the fact that she is virtually the owner of so many "slaves." The conditions are rectified.

The scenes in the Florida pineapple cannery are of particular interest locally, and show a strong contrast to the methods employed in the canneries on Oahu. Provided the pictures are authentic, the methods used today in Florida are antiquated.

Commencing tomorrow night

Blanche Sweet returns in "The Case of Becky," a drama dealing with hypnotism and pre-natal influence in which a young woman possesses two startling and opposite personalities ever in conflict with each other. It was one of Belasco's big stage successes.

"Neal of the Navy" will accompany the feature and the last episode of this thrilling serial, dealing largely with the United States navy, left the audiences in high expectation for thrilling developments to come.

A decision overruling exceptions taken from a judgment of Circuit Judge Stuart by plaintiff in the case of Philomena Silverhorn, administratrix, against the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company of California, was handed down by the supreme court today.
